Our Predictive Analytics Tool empowers healthcare organizations to easily engage in advanced analytics without an extensive data science team to drive faster and more accurate clinical, financial, and operational outcomes. Here's what Approachable AI offers:

Reduce Time to Insights:
Quickly see what matters, and start to adapt, react, and dig deeper into your data.

Predict with Confidence:
No more trial-and-error model fitting; use a custom model built on the fly and provide the why behind each prediction.

Change Tomorrow's Outcomes:
Effectively change outcomes with strategic and tactical recommendations based on the evidence in your data.

Clearsense's platform of products ingests, manages, and consumes data to reveal powerful insights that drive better decisions—and a better bottom line. With governance, security, and scalability built right in, the path to advanced analytics is clear, and Approachable AI is the solution you've been waiting for.

Our advanced analytics tool has lowered the barrier to entry for organizations to engage in better forecasting and planning that offer true ROI- and better bottom-line results.

The future of health care organizations lies in putting the power of advanced analytics in the hands of many, empowering business owners to leverage trusted data to change the way that they operate and deliver care.

Historically, organizations have taken months or even years to take concepts from research to application, with technology being a major limiting factor. Those days are soon to be in the past. We have lowered the barriers to engage in advanced analytics - regardless of size, resources, or maturity level.

More importantly, removing the technical knowledge and skills required, empowering everyday users to go beyond reports that only look backward - to exploring and transforming data into insights and actions to change tomorrow's outcomes.

Take your data from hypothesis to predictive models in minutes, not months.
